ROYAL DUKE WHO LIVES TO DO GO

Philanthropist Who Has Devoted His Life to Helping Mankind Now Aiding Flood

Sufferers.

(Special Correspondence New York practice ought to be double this. But knowing his liberality, many of his patients bave satisfied themselves with g. m. a niggardly fee to his hospital fund, by the royalty of Europe cares for the strug-

Munich, Sept. 14.—One soul at least of the royalty of Europe cares for the struggles and the sufferings of the poor. You may see this wherever in Bavaria the name of the Duke Carl Theodore is mentioned. Just now, in his usual way, he is further endearing himself to his people by his patient, untiring aid to the anisevables overwhelmed by the floods of the iser.

Here, in the midst of all this gloom and wretchedness, he is working like any simple, charitable gentleman, giving his efforts personally and aid from his private forts personally and ald from his private it fortune with a lavish hand.

In many respects the Duke is a strange wing of the castle, and is poss by the reman-strange in that he is of royal birth. Instead of the achievements of arms and politics he has devoted himself to charitation. Instead of the achievements of arms and politics he has devoted himself to charitable Impulses, helping where he can in ble Impulses, helping where he can in whatever class he finds his assistance needed.

When a young man he determined upon some useful course in life, and accordingly was educated in the medical profession. To day he is one of the most celebrated occulsts on the continent—celebrated not because he is of royal birth, but because he his mastered all the knowledge, the delicacy and ingenuity of his chosen craft. In the removal of cataracts the Duke has no superior in Europe. So far he has removed more than 3,000, and in an amazing majority of cases his operations have been successfully and without compensation virgurable of a number of other specialists. So they cars ago the fact that he was operating successfully and without compensation virgurable of a number of other specialists. So they cars and in to charge the usual rate.

The Duke agreed to this, and in a character of the fellow royal sisters is some they grantly in Terzensee a third. It costs more than $20,000 a year to keep them going, and ordinarily the Duke's income from his
